

Wholesale Terms & Conditions

Thanks for coming to Nik & Trick, the small guys who do our bit for the world of analogue photography, here by sharing with other smaller traders, some of the products we access and import.

To help us to do so, to help us maintain our own all-important cash flow, a matter that I am certain all will understand, we have arrived at a stage where in the current environment, we need to impose a few sensible but important conditions which are as follows:

- Trade clients will now be required to be logged in to view prices. Our offers to you are not available to Joe Public.
- Although we're happy to receive orders by phone or email and to issue pro-forma invoice, we would encourage orders to be placed via our website.
- Payment is to be made at point of order or prior to goods being dispatched, all the more important should we be required to order goods in especially.
- Non-stock items and larger quantities ordered in specifically for clients are non-refundable.
- If there's specific delivery criteria (like our own!) please let us know in advance of ordering, we can always sort something out and often get a good deal on delivery of pallet sized orders.
- We shall automatically subscribe you to our mailing list. Please remain subscribed so that you can then benefit from any deals or new products that we deal with.
- Accounts not used for extended periods may be closed without notice, support you see is a two-way deal 😊
- We have hoped to avoid MOQ but now we need to impose one or two, so now a minimum order of 10 rolls (unless otherwise stated) for each of the films has become necessary. There is a new trade only category on the website for this purpose.

That last one is because, we too are required to meet MOQs, maintain stock levels and schedule ordering whilst taking care of our own cashflow.

Despite that we have set pricing to give you good margins that in the main offer more income than you can get for products of similar nature so, come on get stuck in!

Finally, just to reiterate that we believe it's healthy for all of us to get along, to work together, to compete with bigger businesses, and more will come as they see the equity in our growing market, so we feel that communications are all important, we need to stick together!
